

Why do you need method security? What type of object is typically secured at the method level (think of its purpose not its Java type).

If we secure only the web layer there may be a way to access service layer in case we expose some REST endpoints. That's why usually services are secured at method level.